

Family wellbeing in Waikato

FEBRUARY 2017

The focus

This At A Glance looks at Waikato Families and how they're faring. The information used in this publication has been drawn from our Families and Whānau Status Report 2016, which aims to measure, monitor and understand family wellbeing in New Zealand. We are sharing this information to help policymakers and community leaders make more informed decisions about the work they do with families and whānau in Waikato.

We see families as the key building blocks of our society. They give each of us a sense of identity and belonging. The core functions of a family are to:

CARE, NURTURE AND SUPPORT

MANAGE RESOURCES

PROVIDE SOCIALISATION AND GUIDANCE

PROVIDE IDENTITY AND A SENSE OF BELONGING.

About At a Glance

Superu's At a Glance series uses infographics to illustrate research findings or key information about a priority topic.

Did you know...

that there are well over a million families in New Zealand?

And in Waikato, there were 108,882 families at last count.

Waikato families: A snapshot

Waikato family members – along with most of those in the rest of New Zealand – were likely to report being treated fairly, feeling safe at home and work, and having easy access to services. However, they were less likely to live in well-off areas than other New Zealand families. Members of couple families (with and without children) were more likely to support their extended families than similar families across New Zealand, suggesting that they have strong family connections.

Family ethnicity

Ethnicity is based on at least one family member identifying with that group. This means that a family can be represented in more than one ethnic grouping.

How are Waikato families faring?

We assess wellbeing against six broad themes that influence and contribute to a family's ability to function. We also take into account different 'indicators' under each theme. This diagram provides a snapshot of Waikato families according to these specific indicators.

The physical and mental health indicators were measured differently from the other indicators. Individuals were ranked into the top half (above the median) and bottom half (below the median). These indicators report the percentage of people with health equal to or higher than the median (indicated by the arch).

Note: The dotted lines represent individuals and the solid lines represent families. These differ because data was drawn from different sources

Summary table

How do Waikato families compare to national averages* on indicators such as housing, health, safety and skills?

Key

Below national average
Above national average
Combination (above and below national average)
Same as national average

	 Economic security and housing	 Health	 Identity and sense of belonging	 Relations and connections	 Safety	 Skills
 COUPLE, BOTH AGED UNDER 50 YEARS	Less likely to live in a well-off neighbourhood
 COUPLE, ONE OR BOTH AGED OVER 50 YEARS	Less likely to live in a well-off neighbourhood		Less likely to feel that civil authorities are fair	More likely to support extended family
 TWO PARENTS, AT LEAST ONE CHILD AGED UNDER 18 YEARS	Less likely to live in a well-off neighbourhood			More likely to support extended family
 ONE PARENT, AT LEAST ONE CHILD AGED UNDER 18 YEARS	Less likely to live in a well-off neighbourhood
 TWO PARENTS, ALL CHILDREN AGED 18 AND OVER	Less likely to live in a well-off neighbourhood

* Each regional family type is compared with the national averages for the same family type. For example, younger couples (both partners under 50 years of age) in Waikato are less likely to live in well-off neighbourhoods than other younger couples across New Zealand.

Family wellbeing framework

The Family Wellbeing Framework identifies four core family functions and shows how they contribute to wellbeing. The Framework shows just how complex families are, and that there are many factors that influence their ability to fulfil their core functions.

Our purpose

To increase the use of evidence by people across the social sector so that they can make better decisions – about funding, policies or services – to improve the lives of New Zealanders, New Zealand’s communities, families and whānau.

What we do

We work across the wider social sector to:

- promote informed debate on key social issues for New Zealand, its families and whānau, and increase awareness about what works
- grow the quality, relevance and quantity of the evidence base in priority areas
- facilitate the use of evidence by sharing it and supporting its use in decision-making.

About the Families and Whānau Status Reports

Each year since 2013, we have produced an annual families status report that measures and monitors the wellbeing of New Zealand families and whānau. This requirement was introduced by the Families Commission Amendment Act 2014, and we are proud to undertake this work.

The general aim of the Families and Whānau Wellbeing Research Programme is to increase the evidence about family and whānau wellbeing. Our research aims to better understand how families and whānau are faring, and the key role they play in society. This is so that decision-makers in the social sector make informed decisions about social policies and programmes and better understand what works, when and for whom.
